The first he calls Cavafy's ""sensual city,"" an Alexandria of rich tastes and beautiful Greek youths who, likely as not, die early from a glut of love. The second image took root and ripened from the first; it's the ancient, often-conquered Alexandrian province, where the most intense historical moments are those of sensuality, impending loss, destruction, and self-conscious memory.

Guest Post: By Kutay Onaylı. Leonard Cohen's song-poem "Alexandra Leaving," at first glance, is a rather simple refashioning of Constantine Cavafy's "The God Abandons Antony": a similarly-named woman replaces the city as an object of loss, resulting in the creation of a tale of failed romantic love that is commonplace in Cohen's repertoire.

C.P. Cavafy is widely considered the most distinguished Greek poet of the 20th century. He was born in Alexandria, Egypt, where his Greek parents had settled in the mid-1850s. Cavafy's father was an importer-exporter whose business responsibilities frequently led him to the port city of Liverpool, England. Cavafy's father died in 1870, and the business he left in Alexandria proved ...

At the age of nine the future poet went to England, where Cavafy and Sons had its branches, and he returned to Alexandria at sixteen. He was brought up in the Greek Orthodox religion. For a while he attended the Hermes Lyceum, a business school in Alexandria, and some sources tell us that while there he was more interested in classical and historical studies than in the art of commerce.

Greek poet, journalist and civil servant. His consciously individual style earned him a place among the most important figures not only in Greek poetry, but in Western poetry as well.

Constantine P. Cavafy - Wikipedia

Constantine P. Cavafy, one of the most important Greek poets of all times, died in Alexandria on the day of his birthday, as the city's most significant intellectual figure. He was the ninth and last child of Petros Cavafy, a wealthy merchant with Byzantine roots. His works can be divided into three categories: the philosophical poems, the erotic poems and the (pseudo)historical poems.
