Harvard Square Andre Aciman

So, a Jew walks into an Arab cafe. This sounds like the lead in for a bad joke but it is rather the opening of a remarkable new novel, Harvard Square, by Andre Aciman. The Jew is a Harvard graduate student from Alexandria, Egypt. He is a diffident student in a strange land, shy, intelligent and well prepared to make his mark in America.

André Aciman has a reputation for writing length and complex novels about human relationships and Harvard Square lives up to its promise. I have rarely been so impressed by the creation of a character as that of Kalaj, an Arab taxi driver caught in a limbo of displacement from his home country and awaiting a green card to allow him to stay in America.
